

Students from Around the Globe

At St. Andrew's-Sewanee School students from around the corner and around the globe quickly become immersed in the school's academic, extracurricular, and social life. SAS seeks students who are academically motivated, curious, and actively involved in activities in and out of their school. We welcome students to apply to St. Andrew's-Sewanee School whether they wish to graduate from our school or enjoy a one-year enrichment experience.

- St. Andrew's-Sewanee School offers international students an American high school in a safe small-town setting.
- Out of a total school enrollment of approximately 200, SAS averages 20 students with citizenship in 12 countries outside the United States.
- Outstanding juniors and seniors have the opportunity to take free courses for university credit at the nearby University of the South.
- In their first year, students share a room with an English-speaking student from a country other than their own.
- ELL (English Language Learner) students make up a small percentage of our total student body.
- International students are only separated for ELL courses. All other classes reflect the diversity of the student body, allowing our international students to quickly become part of the life of the SAS community.
- All programs at St. Andrew's-Sewanee School are open to international students and the faculty actively encourages their participation. They become involved in leadership positions such as Proctors, Ambassadors, and the Honor Council.
- Our international students frequently participate in interscholastic sports, win awards in state-wide arts competitions, are invited to participate in summer Governor's Schools in various topics, and perform with our choir and the Sewanee Symphony.
- International students have the opportunity to see more of America than Sewanee. Students are often invited to accompany classmates to their homes at holidays and participate in school-sponsored travel programs.
